If the employers are served by some lively times on the coast. At 8.45 p.m. on the 19th July a fire broke out n a block of houses in the Rue du Moulin close to the Yang-king-pang and within a few yards of the French Municipal Hall. The flames blazed up very fiercely, leading to the belief that the fire was a large one. All the engine companies and the Mih-ho-loongs were quickly on the spot, and, hydrants being handy, they fixed their hose to them and rapidly had five streams of water playing on the fire, which was confined to three houses. By a quarter past nine o'clock all danger was over but water was played on the buildings till 9.30. The foreigners worked hard, a petty officer belonging to a man-of-war insisting on climbing upadangerous staircase, but was eventually taken away by some sailors. THE PENDLEBURY COLLIERY EXPLOSION.

One of the most disastrons colliery explosion: recent years occurred on the 18th June, in the Clifton Hall Colliery, Fendlebury, near Manchester. There were at the time 349 men and boys engaged in the three chief seams. From two of these workings almost all the men en aped, though many sustained injuries; but n the third 147 men are entombed, and little or bope is entertained of their being alive Pro noise and shock, the rush of dust and smoke vere accompanied by a sheet of flame. The party formed to descend the shaft were stopped by an unfortunate accident, the cage having stuck on the way. Moreover, the force of the explosion caused a fall of coal, which blocked up an otherwise practicable means of escape in the direction of. reighbouring colliery. The explosion occurred n the Lumps Pit, one of a series of collieries in the Manchester district owned by Messrs. A Knowles and Sons, Limited. The mine is work ed in three levels or seams, and the outburst occurred in the bottom one, known as the Trencherbone, about 500 yards deep. The men from the other pits hastened to the shaft, when the explosion extinguished their lights, and upwards of one hundred and twenty were taken out alive. and thirteen bodies were carried to the bank of men who had been suffocated.

Twenty years ago Cardinal Manning was sanguinely expecting at no distant date the return of England to the bosom of the Roman Catholic Church. But at present, says the British Quarterly Review, the adherents of the Papacy can only claim 3.69 per cent. of the entire religious accommodation of London, which is in the proportion of 1.27 per cent to the nopulation. Their chief strength is in the western districts, and although the Roman Catholics may possibly be quite 150,000 out of a population of 4.000,000, their increase is mainly to be accounted for by the immigration of Irish into the

Why do the revisers of the Old and New estament insist on using the spelling "judgoment" instead of "judgment"? The word being one of especially legal use, we should have thought the universal practice of lawyers in modern times, supported as it is by all contemporary English literature, ought to have been followed. We can only answer our own question by supposing that the revisers have gone back to the spelling of 1611; buf-this is a totally insufficient reason for adopting a mode of spelling which must be an eyesore to every lawyer, not to speak of literary men in general, and which gratuitously adds to the confusion through which every schoolboy, has to struggle his way to a mastery of English orthography. A letter from Aquils, in the Abruzzi, tells us that an Italian Archæological Royal Commission has just visited Sallust's birthplace, the site of the old Sabina town of Amiternum, and has recommended the Government towesume and complete the exervations commenced some years ago. At that time a portion of the theatre and its surroundings were brought to light. It was a semicircular structure with stone seats. Sevaral insc. intions and much ornamental work, with carved pillars, vaults and a stone staircase, were partially uncovered. By a singular freak of chance this thesire and the grater part of the old town were covered up by debris and accumulation of soil, while the amphitheatre, which is only a few hundred paces distant from the theatre, remained exposed to confront the effects of time. Its structure remains shattered and weather beaten. but still imposing. Its elliptical area is now a cornfield, where the harvest is regularly sown and gathered. Lord Harris has written a letter to the committee of the Lancashire County Cricket Club drawing their attention to the subject of unfair bowling. He says a very strong opinion has gained ground of late years that unfair bowling has become too common, and that measures should be taken to check it. He draws attention to the fact that Yorkshire, Kent, Middlesex, Derbyshire, Nottinghamshire, and Surrey signed an agreement in December, 1883, not to employ any bowler whose delivery was at all doubtful. Representatives for the three first-class counties of Lancashire, Gloucestershire, and Sussex, did not sign this agreement. Throughout 1884 Lord Harris thought that throwing was diminishing; but this year he had found, with greatest regret, that Crossland and Nash were, in his opinion, bowling as before—that is, that the delivery of neither was consistently fair. He considered the Lancashire contention that the umpire have never objected to the delivery of either bowler as unanswerable; and that being so, he thinks the only course open to him is to advise the committee of the Kent County Club to declin any further engagement with Lancashire, certainly for this year, and until a more satisfactory state of things maintains. If his committee do not support him he shall consider he has done all that is possible.

Her fond parents took her to Paris as a last resort, hoping to find some skilful physician there capable of arresting the rapid strides of the supposed dreadful disease. In this their hopes were blighted, but fortunately away in that distant foreign city they met with a description of a new method of treating Dyspensia, which emanated from the Mount Lebanon Shakers of the State of New York. The thought struck the parents of this helpless young girl that perhaps their daughter was afflicted with Indigestion or Dyspepsia, and not comsumption; and if so, there might be a chance for

Some of the Seigel's Curative Syrup, made ospecially for the cure of Dyspepsia, was obtained and administered to the patient, and the result was marvellous. To-day their daughter lives in the enjoyment of good health. The fact was, the patient had been treated for the wrong complaint, and when she was treated for Dyspepsia (her real trouble), all the alarming symptoms of consumption vanished. This is not an isolated case. The country is full of suffering thousands that are being freated for Liver Complaint, Malaria, Kidney Disease, Lung Disorders, &c., &c., when the fact is they are afflicted with Indigestion in some of its varied forms, and all of such sufferers would obtain relief if they were properly treated for Dyspepsia.
